SOUND OF TIMES? "Is that thunder I hear," inquired the office clerk, looking up from her typewriter.
"No," was the response, "that's World War III."

102 - 102 - 102

It's rather sudden to start off a column with that kind of stuff. But the headlines of late have been anything but "bluebirds of happiness," to borrow a cliché, or a song title.

Here in Texas, things are not as distant as in 1941 when World War II blew up at Pearl Harbor. That's one reason The (ol') Herald keeps putting out features about Korean, Brazilian, Kenya and Pakistani visitors. They are interested in Milam County's agriculture process. So we had best be interested in them.

Upon talking with these people, one finds an enormous curiosity for things Texan. They find government, agriculture, industry, commerce, civic life, all subjects of fascination. And they are glimpsing the size operations that are most translatable into useful terms for their people: small mechanized farms, local effective government, efficient small business. These are the things that are within their grasp as developing nations.

Talking to competent Americans who know their business, rather than reading it from a manual or hearing it in a lecture hall can be an effective form of democratic indoctrination.

It is particularly interesting to note that Milam foreign visitors have represented all three races: Negroid, Mongloid and Caucasian. Some have visited through Texas A & M, others through personal contacts in Cameron.

These are usually top people in their particular fields, primarily agriculture. Their education runs to good colleges, their English is clear and their comparative youth makes their impressions vital to this country.

One never knows which Army sergeant or what postal clerk is going to head the government on some continents. Men such as the ones visiting Milam County are not revolutionaries, but would be called on to lead their countries, regardless of the political temper.

102 - 102 - 102

This is not all a digression. The ultimate turn of events, beyond Berlin, will be balanced by nations beyond Western Culture. At least three of the nations represented—Kenya, Korea and Pakistan—fit that pattern. Perhaps one of these men could turn the tide.

Perhaps the daughter of that office clerk will be able to look up some day and get the right answer: "Yes, it's only thunder"

Board Approves Advisory Report

The Cameron School Board has approved a recommendation to raise district property valuations 10 per cent and voted to employ an architect to plan four additional classrooms for O. J. Thomas School.

Board action came at a recent meeting to review a citizens advisory group recommendation on the classroom needs at the Negro school. The 25-member advisory group, with C. R. Law chairman, was appointed by the school board.

Dr. David Shapiro moved that the three-man equalization board meet on a continuing basis for the next tax year for establishment of current market values on school district property.

The board voted approval of the motion which also included a recommendation to employ up to 12 local advisors from different parts of the district to assist in determining property values.

Supt. Charles Zeigler, who took over the superintendent's post Monday, said the board is seeking the services of a qualified architect to design the additional OJT classrooms.

An estimated $30,000 will be needed to pay for construction of the classrooms. The 10 per cent valuation will raise about $12,000 and the balance could be borrowed on short-term payout to avoid a bond issue, officials said.

It will require equalization board action to increase valuations 10 per cent, Zeigler pointed out. And the equalization board members will meet this year in a continuing study of current district valuations. Equalization board members are: Robert Weems, Buster Griffin and Frank Tomek.

In other action the board voted to purchase a 1961 GMC school bus, a 60 passenger model, Supt. Zeigler said.

Zeigler told The Herald that seven teacher vacancies exist in Cameron Schools. He has been interviewing applicants for the assistant superintendent's post and has talked to about eight men thus far.

Teacher vacancies also include: Yoe High School industrial arts, homemaking and mathematics; Ada Henderson 7th and 8th grade language arts; O. J. Thomas special education teacher.

GIVE TO THE MILAM COUNTY RED CROSS BLOOD PROGRAM

Lions To Sponsor Scholarship For YHS Graduates

Tom Boyd, president of the Cameron Lions Club, has announced an annual scholarship program to be sponsored by the Cameron Lions.

And he announced that Cameron Lions had contributed $100 to the Texas Lions Crippled Children's Camp, Kerrville.

The announcements came at the regular Monday meeting of the Cameron civic club at Cameron Country Club.

Speaker for the program was Frank Pinkerton, professor of dairying at Southwest Texas State College, San Marcos. He discussed dairying in Central Texas and said several major milk markets are open to dairymen in this area.

He stressed that the dairy farmer was in reality a big businessman and could help any community. He showed what an expanded dairy industry could mean to the economy of Cameron and Milam County.

Boyd said the annual scholarship program to be sponsored by the Lions Club will make a college scholarship award each year to a deserving graduate of Yoe High School.

Funds awarded will be paid directly to the school selected by the scholarship winner. First presentation will be made in May, 1962, Boyd said.

Civil Defense Review

Milam CD Plan Updated

(Since President Kennedy's speech on Berlin last week in which he requested $207 millions for civil defense. The Herald inquired further into the civil defense structure of Milam County. This is the report. — Ed.)

By Frank Luecke
Civil defense planning has been stepped up since January through various government agencies.

Not a likely target area for nuclear attack, Milam County nevertheless would need the basic facilities to serve additional tens of thousands of people — citizens of Travis County at peace, refugees from disaster in case of attack.

To meet the basic problems of such emergency, several agriculture department agencies, office in Cameron, would strengthen County Judge Don Humble's civil defense capabilities.

W. H. Gaston, area manager of the Farmer's Home Administration has the newly assigned task of directing procurement of farm and wholesale foodstuffs for distribution.

"We have orders that civil defense bulk food problems are to be as important a part of our job as working on the financing of farm loans," Gaston said.

"After meetings on how this civil defense job must work, I'm less afraid of nuclear attack than before," Gaston said. "And everyone will share a greater confidence when they know what to expect."

What happens if nuclear attack occurs in Central Texas and refugees pour into the Milam area addition of Jimmy Rettig and Ray Stevens to the coaching staff to replace Wallace Johnson and Harrison McLerran. Jack Latmore will also be on the staff again this year.

Rettig is a Yoe High graduate and was assistant coach at Bruni last year. Stevens is a native of Jackson, Mississippi and was an assistant coach at Crockett last year.

The Pep Squad uniforms have arrived at J. C. Penney's and are now ready for the group. This will be the second year that the pep squad has been organized.

Season reserve seat tickets are now on sale for the five home games this year. They are available at the superintendent's office.

The Yoe band under the direction of Francis Cox will start practice soon in preparation for the football season.

The cheerleaders, Marianne Jones, Kay Harris, Henrietta Richter, David Hudson, Marsh Floris and Dennis Jones started practice sessions last week.

The 1961 schedule is as follows:

Humidity Higher Than July Temps

Swimming pools were proving to be more popular places as August started out as normally expected — hot, with the humidity of 3.16 inches of July rain pressing in.

Temperatures ranged only to 94 high and to 70 low, but appeared headed for the 100 mark this weekend.

Milam Awaits First '61 Bale In Cotton Crop

The Milam County maize crop was off to a slow start while the first bale of cotton was yet to be brought in at presstime Wednesday.

Grain producers reported about three million pounds of grain processed by Tuesday night.

It would be sometime later this month before cotton was expected to reach Milam gins.

Robert Clark, secretary-treasurer of Milam Grain Co., said Milam Grain had processed 20 carloads, but had not purchased any of the grain.

All of the grain was seeking government loans, he said and would bring producers a fair profit if it was approved for loan.

Clark said the number of acres in maize had been reduced by the voluntary maize reduction program conducted by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture this year.

Corn, the second major grain crop in Milam County, was expected to start harvesting about August 20.

Clark said July rains had caused a "sucker growth" on the lower part of maize stalks, increasing moisture content, which is undesirable for better grain yields.

Grain production was later this summer due to the rains.

Last year Cameron grain processors, Milam Grain Co., and Wilson Elevators loaded out about 300 cars of grain. Production was expected to be lower this year.

Bassel Wilson, owner of Wilson Elevators, said that quality of the grain has been high, but moisture content was equally high. He estimated the Milam yield this year will be about 60 to 75 per cent of the 1960 crop.

co-ordination of the food problem. In case of emergency, the group would operate from an office in the basement of Milam County Courthouse.

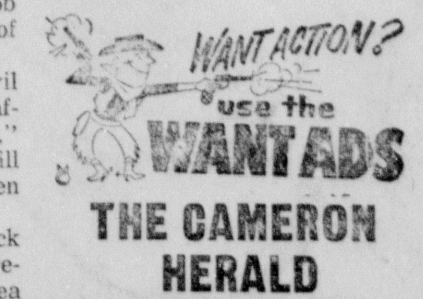

Gaston said his major responsibility — providing food — would be complete when he could turn over the necessary foodstuffs to the Cameron office of Texas Welfare Agency, actual distributing agency for individual and retail purposes.

The soil conservation people would provide regular reports of re-entention count (radio activity) if fallout struck the Milam area. Their reports would be forwarded to Cameron for dissemination among the people.

There would be assistance from the Texas Employment Commission to obtain emergency manpower for the tasks of directing handling and distribution of food.

"I suggest that farmers contact Mr. Moore's office about how much radio activity farm animals can absorb and when they are safe enough for slaughter," Gaston advised. "It is better to learn how to meet an emergency than to panic from lack of information."

Shelter, direction of traffic and the multitude of problems contingent on an influx of nuclear refugees would be handled by the county and city authorities, using conventional police agencies, radio communication and a plan to bring order out of potential chaos. It is clear that civil defense is much a state of mind: knowing what to anticipate and preparing for it.

Weather May Increase Insects

By J. D. Moore
Milam County Agent

"Recent showers coupled with hot summer weather likely will increase horn fly and screw worm problems for Blackland livestock producers," warned County Agent, J. D. Moore.

To control hornflies on dairy animals, he recommended the use of pyrethrins, methoxychlor or mathathion dust. In addition to these chemicals, Delnav, Col-Ral, toxaphene or ronnel (Korlan) may be used on beef cattle.

"Livestock should be observed often to detect screwworms in their early stages," the agent advised. Individual treatments with commercial preparations of lindane, ronnel (Korlan) or Col-Ral are recommended for most livestock or dairy animals, however, Smear 62, or other smears containing Col-Ral or ronnel (Korlan) may be used on livestock other than dairy animals. In addition to controlling screwworms present at time of application, these sprays will give screwworm protection for 2 to 3 weeks.

Most agricultural chemicals are toxic to some extent, and care should be exercised in their use.

Cotton Insects:

Many farmers may wait too long to consider control of insects in late cotton. Control measures should be applied now. Second generation boll weevils are appearing in staggering numbers. Bollworms are already active in the terminal buds of late planted cotton. Late planted cotton should produce a profitable crop due to the excellent moisture and favorable growing conditions if insects are controlled.

Older cotton is maturing; and promises a good crop. Farmers have done a commendable job of controlling insects. Commercial company representatives and members of the 7-Setp cotton committee have added effectiveness to the success by their help in making field inspections and recommendations. Cotton Harvest should begin the last of August and first of September.

CAMERON HERALD VIEW ON SPORTS

— WITH ROBERT MANN —

The local baseball season for the youngsters is completed and although there are no signs of fall-leaves or cool, crisp mornings that are a part of fall, football talk is in the air.

As in the past, Yoe High School is looking forward to a gridiron season that will be engineered by young, energetic, coaches.

Billy Bates and Jack Larimore are the mainstays left from last year's staff. Each have a year or two before they will meet with number thirty in life's list of ages.

Jimmy Rettig, former YHS gridiron star, has joined the staff along with Ray Stevens, a recent A & M graduate.

Bates has high hopes of cooping the 19AA district championship through the talents of fullback Ernie Bayer and Lineman Bobby Hillman, the squads most experienced veterans.

Depth is a serious question in the team's stability. Seniors, out for the sport for the first time, like Carroll Richter and Thomas Leonard could provide the needed punch or vice versa.

VOS
It's interesting to note that Ernest Bayer was pictured in a national football magazine last month and listed on the mag's honor roll team.

Outdoors In Texas

By Vern Sanford

It's the hook that snags the fish, but that chunk of lead -- your sinker -- plays a far more important role in fishing than most anglers realize.

Certain kinds of fishing call for particular types of sinkers.

Some of the more popular sinkers include the square pyramid, triangular bank, bank, dipsey, ball pointed triangular pyramid, diamond, egg, tournament casting, multiple triangular, coil, multiple-eyed cone, torpedo, drill, keel, coin, chain and rangeley. Sinkers fall into three general groups: bottom fishing, casting and trolling.

Let's take a look at the groups.

Bottom Fishing

Here the principal factor is enough weight to reach the bottom. In shallow water with no current, a quarter - ounce sinker might do the job. But 75 miles offshore at one of the snapper banks where the water may be 90 feet deep with a strong current running, you might need eight ounces to a pound of lead to carry the bait to the bottom.

Casting

In casting, where distance is required, the sinker should be streamlined.

Trolling

Special sinkers are needed for trolling. They must be free of holes, depressions or bumps that could cause bubbles when pulled through the water, since the bubbles serve only to distract the attention of the fish from the bait. Trolling sinkers generally are cigar-shaped and designed so they will not spin. When a sinker spins, it will cause one of two things--the line to twist or the line to unravel. Either way it'll ruin your line.

The best bait in the world isn't worth a hoot if the sinker fails to keep it in place. In an angling rolling surf or undertow the shifting sand coupled with the force of the surf or current often will roll the bait and sinker parallel to the shore at a fast clip. Sometimes it will actually wash the terminal tackle right up onto the shore. Thus for this kind of fishing you need a sinker with large flat surfaces -- sinkers that won't roll but tend to bury in the shifting sand. You can get by with round sinkers but only if several are used.

Generally speaking the best sinkers for surf fishing are the square pyramid, diamond and bank types.

There are a few species of fish that have to be hooked the instant they hit the bait. There are also several species that must be allowed to take the bait a few seconds before striking. In either case, special sinkers or rigs are needed if you expect to score on fish.

Let's look at surf fishing as an example. If a heavy surf is running and heavy sinkers are used, the fisherman often will be unable to feel the fish touching the bait because of the weight of the sinker. By the same token there are some fish that will promptly spit out the bait if they feel the pull of the sinker on the line.

You can get around this problem with what is known as a fish-finder rig. Just slip your line or leader through the sinker eye. The line or leader, being able to slip through the sinker instead of pulling against it, enables the angler to feel the touch of the fish on the bait. Thus he can immediately set the hook. Or in the case of surf-fishing for redfish he can allow the fish to mouth the bait a few seconds before setting the hook.

With the fish-finder rig, your sinker stays buried in the sand in one place, while the current moves the baited hook around freely.

If you're fishing a bottom where there are a lot of snags, then use sinkers that don't have sharp edges or corners. Sinkers of the dipsey and egg type are best for this kind of fishing.

There are times when it is necessary to use sinkers with plugs. When you do this, place the sinker several feet ahead of the plug so as not to spoil the action of the lure. Never place the sinker right against the lure.

There's one sinker - lure combination that is deadly on black bass when the fish are in weed patches. Use a floating plug, but with a sinker heavy enough to pull the plug down. The sinker will rest on the bottom, but the plug will ride just over the top of the weeds. If there is a current running, the lure will flutter and undulate like a minnow.

A word of caution about this kind of fishing. Don't use shiny sinkers as the fish may hit at them rather than the lure. The word about shiny sinkers also goes for trolling sinkers.

I once saw a would-be macerel fisherman lose five hooties in a row because he insisted on using shiny trolling sinkers. The fish were hitting the sinkers and cutting the line rather than going for the hooties.

If you expect to score well in fishing, you've got to do a bit more than just keep your hooks sharp. Give some thought to that "weighty" problem of using the right sinker.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mrs. Lula Rogers and daughter Florine have just returned from a two weeks vacation in Ely, Nevada. They visited in the home of her daughter, Dr. and Mrs. O. W. Shelsolm and toured 10 states. They also spent some time in Kansas City, Colorado, Salt Lake City, Los Vegas and Needles Calif.

Miss Marcia Schiller is spending the week in Killeen visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Byers, Cheryl and Janelle.

INTRODUCING

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Duncan are the proud parents of a son born July 20 in Dallas. He weighed 8 lbs. 3 ozs. and has been named Wesley Ernest Duncan. Mrs. Duncan is the former Betsy Ann Vogelsang of Cameron.

Summer Program Termed Success

Cameron's largest and most successful Summer Recreation Program drew to a close last week with the playing of final Little League ballgames.

The largest amount of youngsters and adults alike congregated for this year's activities, mostly centered on baseball. The summer session started June 1 and lasted through the final days of July, two full months of sports, entertainment and fun.

Six Little League squads, five Minor League teams, and two Babe Ruth League teams were composed of about 300 boys drew capacity crowds at Cameron Field, finishing it's second year in use. League officials, Bassell Wilson and Jim Edwards kept the program rolling for the second straight year.

Wilson served his second term as League President and Edwards was in charge of refreshment arrangements, scorekeeping and a dozen other incidental jobs that have to be done for a successful program.

Team managers and league officials took it upon themselves to match skills with the Babe Ruth and Little Leaguers in a tilt that saw many old muscles pulled and backs strained.

Another season highlight was when managers donned women's clothing and played a Milano team.

Lairds Celebrate 65th Annivesary

By Robert Mann

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Laird, Cameron residents since 1918, celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary at their home on 313 South College last Wednesday.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Laird were born in 1876. The couple were married July 26, 1896, in her parents home. Mrs. Lairds father was Rev. C. C. Schulz of Tracy.

Mrs. Laird came to Texas as a young child from Iowa, her birthplace. Mr. Laird was born in Tracy.

The couple farmed in the Tracy community for twenty-two years until they came to Cameron in 1918. Along with their son, Bonds, they established a Men's Clothing Store that was in operation until the boom year of 1918-1930.

"Cameron looked pretty good," said Mrs. Laird, "when we first came here. It was a lively place and business was booming. Why I remember when the New Cameron Drug Store used to stay open until eleven p. m. on weeknights and it never closed on Sundays."

She added that her son and Mr. Lairds two sons worked at the drug store at the time.

Besides raising their own son, a grand-daughter and grandson were brought up in the family.

The grandson is Dr. Bruce Sanders of San Angelo, Texas; and the girl is now Mrs. George Haddaway. Haddaway is editor of the Southern Flight Magazine of Dallas.

Mrs. Laird has been bedridden for the past twenty-two years and spends most of her time watching television and working with puzzles. She has been a member of the Methodist Church since coming to Cameron.

When asked how it felt after sixty-five years of marriage, Mrs. Laird replied in her pleasant, friendly manner, "It doesn't feel like it's been that long. A lot of water has gone under the bridge, but we've been very happy together."

Civic Efforts Laudable...

It is good to hear Cameron's Mayor emphasizing the success of civic projects in this Milam County seat. In an address before a city civic club last week, Mayor Duncum said "Cameron is blessed with an abundance of people who can get the job done in civic work and community projects of all kinds."

Throughout Central Texas, there is a lot of civic soul searching in the light of what cities, large and small, must do to sustain themselves and grow. A glance at the history of recent Cen-Tex economic development tells why:

After World War II, this area returned to a peace-time status where agricultural needs exceeded the supply. Cameron as did Cen-Tex leadership concerned itself with meeting the demands of a post-war boom — money was plentiful. Along came the Korean War, pulling many men, but not the majority, into the police action. Agriculture continued to meet large quotas; Alcoa came to Milam County to take advantage of tremendous lodes of lignite.

At this juncture, agriculture technology and fertilizers cut into the small farmer's lot. Then production limitations were applied by the government to reduce national cotton surpluses. Acreage was reduced in Cen-Tex in favor of higher yields in West Texas. This area did not meet the challenge.

Only in the last six months has a concentrated effort to improve Blackland production begun... on a wide scale. And it appears it will be some time before any such movement can show measured success against booming West Texas.

Since 1955, Cameron has concentrated on an impressive list of private, institutional and public improvements that surpass the record of most Cen-Tex small cities. Alcoa's Cameron payroll, the establishment of Walled Lake Door Co. contributed to these efforts. More than $4 millions, much of it private capital, has been spent in Cameron in the past five years on major facilities... all vital to this community... and Milam County.

Mayor Duncum was referring to the men who made these successes possible. He was citing also the informed Cameron citizenry who have boosted these efforts and contributed much in time and talent.

It would be likely, however, that Mayor Duncum sees this record as the basis for even more future efforts.

To be sure, Duncum has the insight to know that Cameron people and not their buildings are the key to the finished product: water plants, new churches, recreation facilities, businesses, a number of institutional improvements and additions.

Without the zeal these things make apparent, the Mayor nor anyone else could justifiably voice such praise.

It becomes apparent that County and County Seat see joint purposes in these efforts. Cameron without county's support would be as unworkable as counties with Cameron's enlightening focus on the needs of the 1960's.

The strength of Cameron is historic balance. And today, the strength of Milam County is a blend of agriculture, livestock and industry.

Cameron's civic efforts to serve, sustain and improve this balance are justification for the current record and future undertakings.

Mr. K. Upset; Manifesto Out

Russian reaction to President Kennedy's speech of a week ago is cautious. Perhaps the timing of the new Russian 20-year plan is first evidence of Khrushchev's response.

But probably more indicative is the report brought to the White House by John J. McCloy, special ambassador on disarmament.

He reports the Russian premier upset by the President's "fight if we must" speech. It becomes evident that U. S. position on Berlin and Soviet pronouncement of "peaceful coexistence" are incompatible.

What seems most interesting at present time are reactions from socialist and communist elements in Europe and other parts of the world. Summarized, they seem to say: "So Russia promises Utopia in 20 years. What about the United States in 1980?"

Perhaps the world is less credulous with each new Soviet pronouncement. Certainly Red China's belligerent attitude has been squashed by the new Khrushchev line.

Can Soviet peace pronouncements hold true when East Germans continue to swarm into West Berlin? Will Europe accept a closure of the access to West Berlin if East Germany enforces it?

These are immediate questions not answered nor considered by the new Russian manifesto. And if unanswered, West Berlin in itself can become the prig that bursts the Soviet "peace balloon."

School Money Not In Sight

By Vern Sanford

AUSTIN — Store windows already are featuring school clothes, and mothers across Texas are budgeting money for new blue jeans and calico dresses.

But money with which to open the schools is not yet in sight. No one seriously doubts that new taxes will be voted and new appropriations made before current appropriations run out August 31.

Gov. Price Daniel has asked the Legislature to provide $359,000,000 in new revenue to get the state out of the hole and cover future needs. Even in "good times," raising this much money is a staggering problem. It will mean passing taxes to which a good portion of the Legislature — and possibly the governor — are bitterly opposed. It could not be done — except that in a few weeks those blue jean and calico — clad youngsters must go to school.

Senate Works On Tax

Senate's unenthusiastic attitude toward the House — passed tax bill may foreshadow another end-of-the-season deadlock between the two houses.

Even if all senators heartily approved the House bill, they would still have to expand it. State Comptroller Robert Calvert, whose word is final on revenue forecasts, estimates the House bill will raise only $254,000,000. This is over $100,000,000 short of anticipated need. At the time it was passed, House sponsors thought it would bring in about $328,000,000.

House measure would raise money from these sources:

1. A 2 per cent sales tax on all power — driven objects, construction materials, utility services and on other items costing more than $5. (Bulk of expected revenue would be from this provision.)
2. A minimum levy of one cent per thousand cubic feet on natural gas. Holders of dedicated reserve contracts would be liable for paying the difference between present gas production taxes and this minimum requirement.
3. A one — third increase in driver's license fees.

4. A revision in the corporation franchise tax formula to get more taxes from out-of-state corporations operating in Texas.
5. A one per cent transfer ($12,000,000) from the Permanent School Fund to the Available School fund.

6. A bookkeeping change to transfer to the schools in August the portion of gasoline tax money that is slated for school purposes.

Budget In Conference

House and Senate general appropriations bills, each calling for spending in the neighborhood of $2,500,000,000 are in the hands of a joint conference committee.

House bill calls for $16,000,000 more than the Senate version. In addition to what it already had passed, the House instructed its conference committee to hold fast on provisions for a 40 — hour week for state employees. Money already was in the House bill to put state hospital employees on a 40-hour week. To this, the House added in its committee instructions, a 40 — hour week for prison system and Department of Public Safety employees.

House conferees are Reps. James Cotten of Weatherford, B. H. Dewey of Bryan, J. W. Buchanan of Dumas, Malcolm McGregor of El Paso and Bill Hollowell of Grand Saline.

Senate committee members are Senators Ray Roberts of McKinney, A. M. Aikin Jr. of Paris, Crawford Martin of Hillsboro, Wardlow Lane of Center and Grady Hazlewood of Amarillo.

Governor Opens Gates

Just when legislators thought they were going into the stretch on the drive to solve fiscal problems, the governor opened up the session to bills on 21 additional subjects.

Only subjects listed by the governor may be considered in a special session.

Daniel opened the door to legislation on unemployment compensation, law enforcement and traffic safety, the election code, Sunday closing laws, municipal annexation and some 15 other subjects.

Not included in the list were three bone-in-the-throat issues left over from the regular session: small loan regulation, charges in the auto insurance plan and ceding part of Padre Island to the federal government for a park.

Some legislators protested that the avalanche of bills resulting from the governor's broadened call would make it harder than ever to pass a tax program.

Dear editor:

"Well, what do you think Russia is going to do about what we're going to do about West Berlin?" a man in town who keeps up with world affairs and is no more in the dark than the average Congressman asked me yesterday when I went in to get something to keep my tractor radiator from leaking.

I told him I didn't know and then, just to be doing, asked him if he thought there was anything to the report I'd just heard on the radio that serious trouble will break out next in Kuwon.

"It's hard to say," he said. "World is full of potential trouble spots and Kuwon very easily could be the next one. It's worth watching."

LITTLE RIVER PHILOSOPHER

Takes A Look At Foreign Aid And Then Backs Off In Complete Confusion

ching."

I didn't say anything much, but came on home, not having the heart to tell him that as far as I know I'm the only one who ever heard of Kuwon, since it was a word I made up on the spur of the moment.

Don't laugh. I have a notion there are people in Washington who would fall for this too, and if somebody didn't stop them would vote for foreign aid for the fictitious place and then take of in an airplane hunting for it.

Understand, I'm not opposed to foreign aid, the last four Presidents we've had, from both parties, have argued foreign aid is cheaper than war, and a lot safer, and

I imagine they're right, but I'm not sure we're making all our money count. A neighbor of mine, who doesn't pretend to keep up with world affairs but keeps up with human nature, says this country's reputation abroad reminds him of a rich boy in college with plenty of money but not much personality — he attracts lots of people around him, but has very few friends.

On the whole though the problem is too big for me and I'm happy to have somebody else making the decisions.

Say, the joke sure would be on me if there is such a place as Kuwon. Is there

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Kennedy States U.S. Position

By Cong. W. R. Poage

Most of you heard President Kennedy declare the United States position to the world. He stated in effect that he does not carry an umbrella and that there would be no appeasement, as at Munich. Appeasement always means war or surrender further down the line. He in effect said that if the Soviet is determined to have war that they can have it now, rather than at some future time after they have swallowed up many of our European allies.

On the other hand, he made it plain that we would start no war; that we would discuss any legitimate problem, but that we would not allow Russia to wipe out our rights in Berlin or elsewhere.

It was necessary that what the President said be said. I believe that his stand will tend to reduce the probability of war. In the past, our enemies have involved us in war because they thought we would not fight. President Kennedy wants to be sure that this mistake is not repeated. In this I am certain the Congress will give him full support.

Last night the House finally passed the omnibus farm bill by a voice vote. The Senate had acted on a very similar bill the night before. We hope that the Conference Committee can work out an agreement of our differences next week.

The bill as passed contains new approach. It does strengthen, enlarge and improve many existing programs. It continues the Feed Grain Program for another year and adds barley. It requires a cut of 10 per cent in present wheat allotments and then allows wheat producers to retire up to an additional 30 per cent on substantially the same terms now accorded feed grain producers. It extends the law providing for the sale of surplus commodities for foreign currency for three years. It extends the Wool Act (direct payments). It requires the Farmers Home Act and reorganizes this important agency so as to make it more effective. It extends the Great Plains program and the school milk program. It makes it possible to give surplus foods to State and local governments for use in correctional institutions. It adds a few commodities, including peanuts, cranberries and several fruits to the list of crops which can use marketing orders if the producers want to.

All told, it is not a spectacular bill, but it does deal with wheat and feed grains in a manner which is expected to greatly reduce the tremendous surplus of these crops. The price and volume of these largely control the price and the volume of livestock and livestock products,

Pennies saved per hour might not sound important, but check with care — choosing gas heat can literally save you thousands of dollars, just during the life of your mortgage alone. Fuel costs are lower with gas, yet you are more comfortable. You pay less maintenance, because gas heats without moving parts in the heating system. You're spared the costs of installing and running extra heating units for extra-cold days — your gas system is perfectly capable of keeping you cozy always. And you can add summer cooling with gas, thriftily and easily. Why pay more — to get less — than safe, dependable gas gives?

Poison Oak, Ivy Goes With Each Summer Outing

COLLEGE STATION — This is the season when every outing seems to end with at least one case of poison oak or poison ivy.

It is impossible to completely eradicate these plants, but they can be cleaned out from around the home and out buildings. George M. Bee, extension pasture specialist, says the way to control these plants is to use sprays.

Digging up the plants is not always satisfactory because new plants may grow from the remnants. It is also likely that the person removing the plant would come in contact with it, and end up with blisters, skin irritations and other undesirable effects.

One of the most desirable sprays to use is amino triazole, says McBee. This spray can be used around ornamentals but it should never be sprayed on desirable plants or trees. It is generally used at the rate of three tablespoons of chemical per gallon of water, but if the manufacturer's directions are different, follow them. Another chemical that can be used around ornamentals and other desirable plants is Ammate. When using this chemical, care should also be taken to spray only the poison ivy.

Combinations of 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T can be used, but they may not be as desirable because of the drift hazard. There is danger of their drifting onto desirable broadleaf plants and killing them, McBee warns. All precautions should be followed when using this combination spray.

BACTERIA BLIGHT COTTON

Bacterial blight of cotton is the most damaging plant disease in Texas. Losses vary according to Harland Smith, extension plant pathologist, from 35 to 40 million dollars annually from decreased yields.

Manassas Army Lauds Heros; Officers Recover

By Robert Stonedale

Manassas Junction, Va., July 30, 1961. — The valiant Confederate soldiers who won the Battle of Manassas last week are lauded in their praise of Brig. Gen. Thomas J. Jackson of Virginia. In admiring phrases the men describe how Jackson held his brigade steady under the full weight of the Federal attack on Henry Hill. While other troops were forced from the field, the steady veteran of the Mexican war kept his five Virginia regiments in line of battle waiting for the proper moment. A bullet wounded his horse and another creased his hip. Later, he was struck in the hand, but remained imperturbable under the fire.

General Bernard Bee, rallying his men, then gave Jackson the nom de guerre that has since become famous in the army.

"There stands Jackson like a stone wall," shouted Bee to his struggling men in the heat of the battle. "Rally on the 'Virginians'!" The gallant Bee fell mortally wounded shortly thereafter and Jackson and the First Brigade bore a new name that is becoming famous throughout the South.

Stern Discipline

The General does not permit newspapermen in his command, and does not favor publicity of any sort. The picture of him that is beginning to emerge is that of a stern soldier, whose concept of duty is absolutely rigid. Decorated twice for gallantry in action in Mexico, and a fervent churchgoer, he was a professor of tactics and mathematics at Virginia Military Institute when the hostilities began.

An example of this attitude toward military duty was reported this morning by a member of his staff who must remain nameless. One of Jackson's regimental officers applied for leave yesterday but the General refused him, pointing out that leaves of absence have been prohibited for the past 10 days. The officer renewed his request, adding that his wife was seriously ill and might be dying. "Old Jack", as his men are beginning to call him, stared at the youngster for a moment.

"Do you love your wife, Sir, more than your Country?" he asked coldly.

The lieutenant retired, abashed. The General has recently refused his own wife's request that he take leave to visit her, on the ground that he cannot set a bad example for the men.

Another heroic figure from last week's battle is Maj. Robert Denon Wheat, commander of the undis-

Unfortunately, Major Wheat's readiness matches his bravery. The young lawyer turned soldier, who was shot through both lungs as he led a charge of his men toward the Stone Bridge on the left flank. When a surgeon examined him, he was told to expect death since there was no record of anyone surviving such a wound.

Undismayed, the brave officer replied lightly in his legal phrases in which he was trained.

"I don't feel like dying yet, Doctor, Wheat protested. 'I take exception to the precedent and will put my case upon the record.' He is reported to be recovering satisfactorily one of many such brave officers now convalescing from their wounds.

Another casualty in the army's left wing was Col. Wade Hampton, 43, a millionaire sportsman and planter from South Carolina. It is said he opposed Secession in his native State, but when he determined to leave the Union he pledged his fortune and his life to defense. Although without military experience, he personally provided arms and equipment for Hampton's Legion, a mixed body of infantry cavalry and artillery and was commissioned Colonel.

Hampton Recovering

During the attack on the Warrenton turnpike, the Legion charged the enemy guns head on and suffered heavy casualties. Of the 600 men present for duty on the morning of the battle, fully 121 had fallen by mid-day. Lt. Col. B. J. Johnson was killed during the first charge, and Colonel Hampton's horse was shot from under him. The intrepid Colonel jumped from the stricken animal's back, seized a rifle, and picked off several Federal officers who were leading a counterattack.

As he led his men during the final grand charge of the Army, Hampton was felled by a bullet which struck him in the left shoulder. His command continued the attack until the pursuit was halted. The Colonel's wound was proved minor and he will rejoin the Legion within the week.

On such men as Gen. Jackson, Col. Hampton, Maj. Wheat and others like them, hopes for Southern Independence must rest.

Didn't Feel Like Dying

Unfortunately, Major Wheat's readiness matches his bravery. The young lawyer turned soldier, who was shot through both lungs as he led a charge of his men toward the Stone Bridge on the left flank. When a surgeon examined him, he was told to expect death since there was no record of anyone surviving such a wound.

Undismayed, the brave officer replied lightly in his legal phrases in which he was trained.

"I don't feel like dying yet, Doctor, Wheat protested. 'I take exception to the precedent and will put my case upon the record.' He is reported to be recovering satisfactorily one of many such brave officers now convalescing from their wounds.

Another casualty in the army's left wing was Col. Wade Hampton, 43, a millionaire sportsman and planter from South Carolina. It is said he opposed Secession in his native State, but when he determined to leave the Union he pledged his fortune and his life to defense. Although without military experience, he personally provided arms and equipment for Hampton's Legion, a mixed body of infantry cavalry and artillery and was commissioned Colonel.

During the attack on the Warrenton turnpike, the Legion charged the enemy guns head on and suffered heavy casualties. Of the 600 men present for duty on the morning of the battle, fully 121 had fallen by mid-day. Lt. Col. B. J. Johnson was killed during the first charge, and Colonel Hampton's horse was shot from under him. The intrepid Colonel jumped from the stricken animal's back, seized a rifle, and picked off several Federal officers who were leading a counterattack.

As he led his men during the final grand charge of the Army, Hampton was felled by a bullet which struck him in the left shoulder. His command continued the attack until the pursuit was halted. The Colonel's wound was proved minor and he will rejoin the Legion within the week.

On such men as Gen. Jackson, Col. Hampton, Maj. Wheat and others like them, hopes for Southern Independence must rest.
